ACADEMICS

Graphic Design (APGRD)

Associate in Applied Science Degree

2013 - 2014 2014 - 2015 2015 - 2016

Description

This program prepares students for a career as a graphic designer. Graphic designers are specialists in the field of visual communication, trained to communicate, inform, instruct or sell. Students gain skills in the principles of graphic design, publication design, interface and mobile design working on a variety of projects that focus on theory, concept development, typography and production techniques that culminates in the production of a portfolio. Creative and artistic ability is required for careers in graphic design, as well as originality and the capacity for experimentation in visual problem-solving. Students also need the ability to master software skills as they relate to each medium.

Graphic Design majors should see GDT faculty for academic advisors according to the first letter of their last name: Ingrid Ankerson (A-L), Kristine Willimann (M-Z).

Graphic Design (APGRD)

Associate in Applied Science Degree

Program Effective Term: Fall 2013

This program prepares students for a career as a graphic designer. Graphic designers work with writers, publishers, photographers, printers, and other specialists in the field of visual communication design to communicate, inform, instruct, or sell. Students may work on publications, advertising, or the Internet. The program focuses on developing skills in basic design theory, concept development, typography, the major graphic design software, and knowledge of production techniques for print and electronic media as exhibited in a portfolio. Creative and artistic ability is required for careers in graphic design, as well as originality and capacity for experimentation in visual problem-solving. Students also need an aptitude for developing strong skills with desktop computers and graphics software programs.

Graphic Design majors should see GDT faculty for academic advisors according to the first letter of their last name: Lind Babcock (A-L), Kristine Willimann (M-Z).

Rationale for proposed changes or discontinuation:

The changes in this degree reflect the fact that industry is demanding graphic designers to be skilled in not only in print media but Web-based media. This new degree gives students the knowledge and skills to become productive designers by providing them with the essential knowledge of contemporary graphic design as well as the ability to create visual communications in both print and Web-based media.

Program Information Report

School of Digital Media Arts

Creativity abounds in the School of Digital Media Arts which encompasses the disciplines of animation, graphic design, internet professional, photography and digital video. The programs in Digital Media Arts introduce students to foundational skills in these disciplines and prepare them for creative jobs.

Washtenaw Community College offers programs at several levels for students who want to begin new careers, or advance in their existing careers. The first level is the certificate, which can vary from nine to thirty-six credits, depending on the field. Certificates generally prepare students for entry-level jobs.

The next level, an Associate Degree, is available for some programs. Credit hours from the certificate can be applied to the credit hours needed for the Associate Degree.

Graphic Design

From the foundations of visual communication through production techniques, this field allows you to utilize your creative and artistic abilities.

Graphic Design (APGRD)

Associate in Applied Science Degree

Program Effective Term: Fall 2012

This program prepares students for a career as a graphic designer. Graphic designers are specialists in the field of visual communication, trained to communicate, inform, instruct or sell. Students gain skills in the principles of graphic design, publication design, interface and mobile design working on a variety of projects that focus on theory, concept development, typography and production techniques that culminate in the production of a portfolio. Creative and artistic ability is required for careers in graphic design, as well as originality and the capacity for experimentation in visual problem-solving. Students also need the ability to master software skills as they relate to each medium.

Articulation:

College for Creative Studies, BFA degree;
Eastern Michigan University, several BS degrees.

Copies can be obtained from the Counseling Office, a program advisor, or from the Curriculum and Assessment Office Web site: <http://www.wccnet.edu/departments/curriculum/articulation.php?levelone=colleges>.

Program Admission Requirements:

Basic proficiency with desktop computers is required to enroll in GDT computer-based courses. Students with no or minimal computer skills are encouraged to take GDT 105, Introduction to Mac Graphics.

Graphic Design (APGRD)

Associate in Applied Science Degree

Program requirements shown below are for catalog year: 2010 - 2011 Change Year

Description:

This program prepares students for a career as a graphic designer. Graphic designers work with writers, publishers, photographers, printers, and other specialists in the field of visual communication design to communicate, inform, instruct, or sell. Students may work on publications, advertising, or the Internet. The program focuses on developing skills in basic design theory, concept development, typography, the major graphic design software, and knowledge of production techniques for print and electronic media as exhibited in a portfolio. Creative and artistic ability is required for careers in graphic design, as well as originality and capacity for experimentation in visual problem-solving. Students also need an aptitude for developing strong skills with desktop computers and graphics software programs.

Show all changes on the attached page from the catalog.

Rationale for proposed changes or discontinuation:

- INP faculty recommend replacing INP 140 with INP 152 in order to better prepare students for a website design course. GDT faculty agree that INP 140 and 176 are not serving the needs of GDT students.
- GDT 130 InDesign is a newly developed and offered course on Adobe's page layout software InDesign. InDesign is gaining in popularity. Students are comfortable using InDesign, as it "feels" like other Adobe software with which they are familiar. Students will be able to satisfy the program requirement for learning page layout software by completing either GDT 130, or the existing GDT 127 (QuarkXPress).
- The number of prerequisite overrides being given for GDT 105 indicate it is time to eliminate this course as a level one prerequisite to GDT computer-based courses. The program requirement will now be a more generic "desktop computer proficiency," with an accompanying notice that Macintosh computers are used in the Graphic Design program. GDT faculty will continue to recommend students take this course on an individual basis.
- Adding a note to the catalog Graphic Design program page letting students know that we use the Macintosh platform is due to the removal of the GDT 105 Intro to Mac Graphics program prerequisite. Students are informed they have the option of taking GDT 105. A note about needing basic computer skills and the departmental computer platform will appear in class schedules under the Graphic Design heading as well.

Graphic Design (APGRD)

This program prepares students for a career as a graphic designer. Graphic designers work with writers, publishers, photographers, printers, and other specialists in the field of visual communication design to communicate, inform, instruct, or sell. Individuals may work on publications, advertising, the Internet, interactive media, exhibit graphics, signage, corporate identity or packaging. The program focuses on developing skills in basic design theory, concept development, typography, the major graphic design software, and knowledge of production techniques for print and electronic media as exhibited in a portfolio. Creative and artistic ability is required for careers in graphic design, as well as originality and capacity for experimentation in visual problem solving. Students also need an aptitude for developing strong skills with desktop computers and graphics software programs.

Program Admission Requirements:

A high school Macintosh-based course, or GDT 106 with a "C" or better, or instructor permission is required to enroll in GDT computer-based courses.

Continuing Eligibility Requirements:

Students must demonstrate basic computer literacy skills by successfully passing the Computer and Information Literacy Test. The test may be taken at any point during the program, but must be completed before graduating.

Learning Outcomes	Assessm't Tool	When Assessed	Course/other	#Students/Evaluators
1. Conceptual Development And Design Methodologies
Conceptual Framework, Ideation, and Visual Problem-Solving
Students will identify communication goals, develop and apply problem-solving strategies and processes, and explore effective and dynamic solutions to visual communication needs.	Design Strategies	Three-year cycle beginning F/2008	GDT 290	25 students-random selection of project strategy papers and sketches (GDT faculty)
Students will identify, explain and produce graphic symbols. These symbols serve to represent and sometimes expand the interplay of denotative and connotative elements of the visual message	Project Summaries	Three-year cycle beginning F/2008	GDT 290	25 students-random selection project summaries/rationales. 2. Principles of Design Theory-
Principles of Graphic Design, Organization and Visual Theories
Students will create single and multi-page publications that demonstrate understanding and application of basic principles of graphic design, visual theory and visual organization.	Portfolio	Three-year cycle beginning F/2008	GDT 290	25 students-random selection of student portfolios (outside review and GDT faculty)
Students will exhibit understanding of design principles and theory by articulating critical analysis of visual communication design publications.	Critique (written papers)	Three-year cycle beginning F/2008	GDT 290	25 students-random selection of formal critique (GDT faculty)
3. Visual Communication Design
Structure and Imagery
Students will an ability to design effective visual communication through organization of design elements (including typography, imagery, line, color, shape and space)	Portfolio	Three-year cycle beginning F/2008	GDT 290	25 students-random selection of student portfolios (outside review and GDT faculty)

4. Visual Literacy

History, Analysis and Semiotics

Students will identify the influences of graphic design movements, styles, eras, technologies and designers of historical significance from the 19th century to the present.

Novice: No evidence of advanced skill

Critique Evaluation

Student writes a formal critique on the work of a peer or on a professional design.

The criteria for evaluation:

1. Grammar and Syntax (how well the paper was written) 10 points
2. Success in identifying signifiers (formal qualities of the work being evaluated) 20 points
3. Evaluation (how well has the student designed the criteria for evaluation) 20 points
4. Formal Analysis (how well is the student's evaluation supported) 40 POINTS
5. Presentation (design of the paper) 10 points
